

New London restaurant openings for March

With Greece coming to Borough, a Mediterranean wine bar opening on Exmouth Market, and a classic French bistro in London Bridge, the capital has big continental energy across the board this month

The Walmer Castle dining room

We're firmly in chunky knit and chapstick season, when cosy evenings in the pub are more or less obligatory. Located on the iconic Ledbury Road in Notting Hill, the refurbished The Walmer Castle gastropub is headed up by husband and wife duo Jack and Poppy Greenall – publicans and proprietors of the much loved The Surprise Pub in Chelsea. On the menu are certified cockle-warmers like scotch eggs with dijon mayo, pork and chicken terrine with cornichons and confit creedy carver duck leg with lentils and pancetta. Plus, they're slinking out Sunday roasts served with de rigueur Bloody Marys. Cheers to that.
