The landmark Walmer Castle pub, located on Ledbury Road in Notting Hill, will reopen next month following the venue's complete refurbishment.

Operated by husband and wife Jack and Poppy Greenall, proprietors of sister venue The Surprise in Chelsea, the reimagined Walmer Castle will remain a traditional community pub with a welcoming atmosphere.

With interiors designed by West London-based design studio Isabella Worsley Ltd, the pub's updated style honours the building's history, which dates back to 1845.

Spread across three floors, the independent pub offers a characterful bar on the ground floor, with the first and second floors housing private event spaces, including a more intimate dining room on the second floor.

The menu will focus on seasonal British dishes, created by chef Luaan van der Watt. Open seven days a week, the pub will also stock an extensive range of draft beer and cider from independent breweries worldwide, as well as wine selected by west London merchants Jeroboams and Wanderlust wine.
