
The Telegraph

How the humble door curtain became the latest home must-have

They keep the heat in – and they look good, too

The designer Isabella Worsley says door curtains are essential for keeping in the heat in a place like the Walmer Castle pub in Notting Hill, which she recently redesigned, where doors are open and shut all day long, but the inside needs to stay cosy. “Door curtains can be a great way to bring interest into a room, as well as serving a practical purpose in the cold winter months,” she adds.

Isabella Worsley added door curtains to the Walmer Castle pub in Notting Hill | CREDIT: Helen Cathcart